Alan Gauld, former professor of psychology at the University of Nottingham, United Kingdom, has written: "There is an extensive literature on the ostensible evidence for [human] survival of bodily death...."

We list below what we consider are the best 49 titles (both popular and scholarly), published between 1935 and 2017, that deal specifically with such evidence concerning whether or not there is a life after death. Some of the paranormal evidence considered involves near-death experiences, out-of-the-body experiences, apparitions of the dead, mediumistic communications and memories of former lives especially involving children.
